Editing with tools The tools you need to work on Photoshop are the ones in the toolbars. Layers, Tools, and Paths: The Layers tool bar is the most important tool bar to use because it includes all the functions you need to edit an image and apply one on top of another. Layers Tool Layer Styles: The layer styles function lets you apply specialized effects to each layer within the image. In this section, you will find curves, drawing,

Screening for familial breast cancer in British women: a three-year follow-up study. Screening programmes for breast cancer have reduced mortality rates, but the data are inconclusive in women with a family history of breast cancer. This study aimed to screen for an increased risk of breast cancer in a cohort of women from birth to age 83 years with a family history of breast cancer. Prospectively, 778 women with a family history of breast cancer from birth to 1985 were contacted yearly for three years. A history of breast cancer or if the woman had received treatment was a criterion for invitation to screening. Opportunistic screening was offered if the women were initially unscreened or were previously screened with a negative result. A total of 192 women with a personal history of breast cancer were invited to screening, and 70 (36%) attended, with a positive result in 27 (38%). The proportion screening increased with age, with a peak at age 61. The proportion of opportunistically screened women did not vary by age. The positive predictive value of screening in those initially unscreened was low. The proportion screened and the positive predictive value of screening is lower in women with a family history of breast cancer than in women without family history of breast cancer. Opportunistic screening without a family history should be considered in women with a strong family history. A three-dimensional facial expression recognition system based on a constrained class-based support vector machine classifier. A 3D facial expression recognition system is developed for identification of the 3D facial expressions of a human. The system integrates a constrained class-based support vector machine (CS-SVM) as the classifier. In the classifier, the objective function and the constraints, including the space of the neural network models and the observation input vector of the classifier, are described. The system consists of four phases: template matching, local smoothing, feature extraction and face identification. Firstly, the system uses the template matching and local smoothing phases to find the facial profile points and the facial profile. The facial profile is then smoothed by a local classifier and then used as the observation vector for the classifier. The classifier can handle both normal and abnormal classifications and the PSNR in the system is higher than that of other related systems. The experimental results show that the system has an average recognition rate of approximately 95%.Q: Generalizing error messages from multiple.js files with django and javascript_include_tag I have a large javascript file with numerous

LONDON—In the free-wheeling era of modern politics, they say there's no such thing as bad publicity. Conservative candidate for the upcoming UK general election, Zac Goldsmith, is, however, facing something less glamorous than a crashing campaign: a backlash on Twitter. The second-place leader in the Liberal Democrat and Tory race on Friday promised to cancel the controversial rail line in his constituency, a move that would see him become the first politician to scupper a train line since the inauguration of the modern franchise system a decade ago. Goldsmith, the London mayor who is the nephew of the veteran Labour MP for Islington North, Margaret Hodge, pledged to scrap the West London line that runs through his constituency. He said the private Central line was badly needed, but the Northern line extension had no business going ahead because it was not justified. "It is important that we get a better tube service," he said. "But we cannot let the Northern line extension go ahead." His spokesman justified the decision by saying that "Labour, Tory and Lib Dem London Assembly members supported the plan." The decision sparked fury and ridicule on Twitter. "Currently unfollowing @ZacGoldsmithMP because I don't want to RT all the rape jokes and paedo jokes on the world's worst blog," said one user. Another said: "Can someone tell Zac Goldsmith, you can never be mayor of London as long as you oppose high speed rail." One tweeter even wrote:

"Zac Goldsmith has been tweeting all morning and hasn't said he's running for mayor." "The only way to run for mayor, Zac, is to run for mayor," said another. Goldsmith was selected to fight the safe Liberal Democrat seat in the House of Commons in September. The endorsement of the Conservative Party, which is heading for a landslide victory in the election, could just as easily have gone to the candidacy of arch-Brexiteer Boris Johnson, who runs a strong second in the polls. The decision to call off the train plans, after the Conservative mayoral candidate initially supported them, has led to questions over the 'no mandate' line that won the Tory candidate Boris Johnson the keys to 10 Downing Street in May's general election. Johnson has since said he was open to reconsidering the plans. "Of course Boris Johnson should have consulted the people of Brent before
