Full of surprises and packed with breathtaking story and gameplay, Undercover Agent is a psychological role playing game packed with twists. So read on. The Story: You are Silas Bishop. A forty-year old genius working at the DTU, a covert agency in the US Department of Homeland Security. It's your job to defend the country from terror threats, but even with the best agents and the best technology, you can't anticipate your latest assignment, which is to track down a deadly weapon and neutralize its capacity to destroy society. You're pulled off the case for three days of intensive training in virtual reality to break you out of your shell and teach you how to work undercover. But you can't count on your training, your frame of mind, or your brain. You'll need all three if you have any hope of finding the new bio-weapon before it's too late. What if you suspect there's a mole in your office? Or one of your fellow agents? How will your actions and your relationships in the real world affect your mission? If you stick to the plan, will you succeed? To find out, you'll need to talk to your colleagues and make tough decisions as you play a unique interactive story, where the only thing you can rely on is yourself. It's up to you whether you go undercover, find the bio-weapon, or escape with your life. As you play, the story branches out to multiple endings. And you'll need both your brain and your heart to find which story is your destiny. What's New: Since the original release of Undercover Agent, the game has been updated to a new engine and new graphics. The new engine powers a new look and the ability to customize your environment. You can change the text, music, and plot points, which can result in some really exciting story changes. In addition, there are dozens of new skills that make Silas Bishop's office and life look and feel like your office and life. Undercover Agent is a new experience for you, the player. What's new in Android Amazones:

! by Matt Fowler, October 23, 2017 Tomorrow at the New York Comic Con, the crew of the Orville interact with fans at the Hall H panel. This is not your standard Comic Con panel, but an interactive, fan festival like fans are used to at Star Trek conventions. And we're not talking about a promo panel or writing room Q&A like we did last year at NYCC. It looks like we'll get a lot of hands-on time with the crew up on stage! There are some rules for the panel, but lots of ways for fans to participate and get involved. We expect a packed crowd. Hopefully some of the youtubers like me will be down there early too. Details are as follows: WHAT: The FOX Panel WHERE: Hall H (Ballroom 20) WHO: Executive Producer & Showrunner, Seth MacFarlane; Executive Producers Brannon Braga, Scott Grimes, David A. Goodman; Writers and Producers Jonathan Frakes (The Orville) & Justin Lin (Star Trek Beyond, Perfect Storm, "The Core"), plus members of the cast & crew WHEN: Friday, October 26, 7-8 PM For those of you who want to attend it will take place tomorrow at the NYCC in the Haler hall in room #20 (if you plan on watching online, depending on your Internet access, the panel may be a little slow to load). So grab some snacks, drinks and if you are able, your Starfleet uniforms and come dressed as your favorite 20th century Starfleet command officer (or female). We will need you. The show airs on FOX on Thursdays at 9:00pm ET/PST. PLEASE NOTE: This is not open to the public. Make sure your hotel room reservation allows you access to Hall H. If you are passing through NYCC, our first Team Orville fans gathering is taking place tonight at 8:00 PM ET/5:00 PM PT in Columbus Circle at William Floyd Way, SW 72nd Street. I will be there until we wrap things up at 10:00 PM ET/7:00 PM PT. Commander Fox McCloud (Mr. Sulu) and his crew have crash-landed on an unknown world. The Orville has discovered life forms that are technological superior to anything known in human history, and they have fled towards their Alpha Quadrant

Men's Adventure Games are set in vibrant, multi-storied cities that are completely land based. The stories are often myth-like or fantastical, but often deal with more realistic challenges the men must face. The plots hinge on the actions of the players in the City rather than on turn based battles, as in War, so every class has the chance to shine. The danger in city based adventures is that the people are not accustomed to adventuring on foot, and there are a wide variety of hazards that can be found in a city, including the sinister forces that lurk in the shadows. Nearly 20 years ago at a small gaming convention in Texas named Dragon's Lair, one of the biggest influences on the growth of Men's Adventure Games, Eric Flint, attended a seminar about Men's Adventure games led by a veteran game designer, Jeff Tidball. The seminar was almost immediately moved to a very dark, anonymous space that flew by some of the attendees headfirst and a founding mother of the Men's Adventure Game genre was born. In the years since, this genre has continued to flourish with a number of amazing games, some of which even come directly from the writers of these titles. Follow the story of Matt Stone as he is forced to navigate a dangerous city in search of his wife and the two mysterious artifacts that are said to be capable of changing the face of the world. You will need to be adept at playing every class in the game (ie, ALL classes should be well-versed in a battlemage, thief, paladin, etc), as this means the number of characters you will be required to play is staggering. *NOTE! The Men's Adventure Games System will never be compatible with the Advanced Dungeons & Dragons game (3.x/3.5/4.0) game system. The Men's Adventure Games System (which has now been merged into the "Call of Cthulhu" game system) has no official connection with the Advanced Dungeons & Dragons game, and many people will say these games are incompatible with the Advanced Dungeons & Dragons game, but the game can be played using the Advanced Dungeons & Dragons game rules, which means most monsters and spells are already there. WARNING: This product contains mature subject matter and profanity. It is intended for adult audiences only. Product Description: The Men's Adventure Games System is a multi-classed, gear-limited series of role playing games that feel like the old style of the genre, but still have all the
