AreaZ is a sandbox survival game with permadeath. All players start in a persistent world with a procedurally generated island (if you make it to the other side!) in their initial location (none of the islands are generated!). Each player can use different starting items to survive, the game has no defined class system and no missions. Additionally, different people have different values, which determine their character progress, and influences what they can and cannot do. The Island Players will visit a procedurally generated island, that is persistent from game start to game end. This island has different biomes (beach, grass, jungle and swamp) with different weather (rain, fog, waves), biomes (mountains, island, river) and resources (fish, fruits, rocks). Some Biomes contain special features that can be found in those biomes. These features can be valuable resources, treasures, rare items or other effects for the game. Main features The main features of AreaZ are: Player Survival Players have to make their own decisions on where to find food, where to build shelter, where to find water and so on. If one of these resources run out, the player will die and need to start the game all over again. Multiple Game modes AreaZ has two separate game modes, Survival mode and Story mode. Solo Survival This mode is the core game mode of AreaZ. Here players are completely on their own without any help from any NPCs or AI players. There are no other players in this mode apart from the AI players that spawn on the island when the game starts. Team Survival This mode is the multiplayer mode of AreaZ. In Team Survival mode the players can join forces (using the party system) to survive. In this mode there will always be multiple players on the island, but the island will never generate more players over time. When players join a team they can either form a party with up to three people or two parties with a maximum of five people each. When five people join a party the party leader is always enabled, while players can join the party as players or they can join as a group and request the party leader. The players in a party must be able to communicate with each other in order to coordinate their activities and share the same resources. Roleplaying Style The players aren't playing as a character, they are playing as an individual, that doesn't matter what it's called, players are still playing as an
