The American Camp Association has again

expanded the amount of camps to choose from. This year, fourteen new camps have joined the ACA's roster of more than 180 camps and 50,000 campers. Kitsap Kitsap County's Rockville Camp offers programs for girls ages 6-15 years old, on a 100-acre island in the Puget Sound. The camp also offers a residential program, providing a safe environment for children from Seattle-area foster care. The mission of Kitsap's Rockville Camp is to empower girls to make good decisions through self-confidence, character, and inner strength. The camp emphasizes strong leadership, service, and citizenship, along with a variety of outdoor activities and hands-on skills. "Our goal is to lead them through the twists and turns of life's adventures in such a way that our Campers grow stronger each day and make good decisions throughout their lives," said camp director Cathy Baker. The activities offered at Kitsap Rockville Camp include equestrian therapy; swimming, kayaking, and canoeing; tennis, volleyball, flag football; arts and crafts; and theatrical performances. Camp is open the first two weeks of July. Boise Led by Idaho Young Women's Christian Association (YYWCA) leadership, Boise's Camp Wapiti brings a faith-based, girls-only camp experience to the wonderful wapiti lands of the Boise National Forest.
