275. The council does not consider that the right to freedom of religion and to access to the means necessary to express one's faith should be restricted, and it would not wish to weigh in on the position of the international community on this question. [271] The council reminds all States that the duty of non-interference in the internal affairs of another State has full force, in accordance with the principles of international law. The council also urges States to respect the work of religious institutions in education, research and charitable work, in accordance with the purposes of the Charter of the United Nations. 247. A rich variety of cultures that are committed to building societies in which every man and every woman can grow is urgently needed. The Bible certainly offers us a guide. Yet we know that the only way for social creativity and solidarity is openness to the Other. It is faith in the Other, or openness to the Other, which lies at the heart of social and economic development. This is the way of solidarity. In order to face globalization, man must turn away from his idolatries and rediscover his inner fullness in the knowledge of who he is, of where he comes from and of where he is going. He must recognize his true nature, the fact that he is made in the image of the One who is both the Creator and the Redeemer. This recognition makes him a son of God and thus a subject of a history that has a telos and end. This end is determined by God. God is love, he loves us and we must love, especially the poor and the excluded, those left out of the society of the abundant. As Saint Paul says, "love is the fulfillment of law" (cf. Rom 13:8).

12. As long as we do not recover our identity, the problems will never cease. For this reason, one of the greatest Christian leaders of our times, Pope Benedict XVI, insists on the importance of recovering the Church's full identity, in order to fulfil her mission of bringing about the reign of God on earth. [20] 38. If we look carefully, however, we will see that our music archives contain many examples that show just this style of creative collaboration, many examples that also testify to the flourishing of the human spirit. The longings of many people for justice and liberty, the dignity of man and solidarity that prevents him from being regarded as an object, or the peace that reestablishes peoples in communities, are all described in songs and speeches, in great works, in all the literature of the world. But at the same time, and in order to maintain the vitality of this precious heritage and all its beauty, we should not lose sight of the causes of this wealth. [99] We know that a song's purpose is to convey a message. We also know that, in the Divine order, all humanity can raise its song to the Creator, the Father of all the ages. This is what the song of the angels tells us: "But to the angels it was said, 'Do not be afraid, for I am with you; you need not labour any more, for you will obtain everything you desire.' " (St. Luke 2:13). [100] Music is a new dimension of the human person, in which it takes part in all human activities and in the service of others in a new way. [100] The composer and the musician, after having created and given to society the treasure of song, may also risk their lives in the defense of freedom and of humanity, especially for the most vulnerable and the excluded. [200] The spiritual and the material, the active and the contemplative, the visible and the invisible, the sacred and the profane: all these things can coexist in the music and are reflected in the musical drama with the same intensity that characterizes the eternal Creator.
